

Stephen Otieno

Graduate Student
Department of Urban and Regional Planning,
University of Nairobi
Nairobi, Kenya

MA Candidate (Environmental Planning &
Management) University of Nairobi; BA (Urban & Regional Planning) University of Nairobi

Email: otienostiv@gmail.com

Stephen Otieno is a trained Urban & Regional Planner and an Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) Associate Expert with. Presently, he is a research scholar with the Climate Change and Adaptation in Africa. (CCAA) Programme. Where he is analysing water governance and climate change adaptation strategies in the informal settlement of Huruma in Nairobi, Kenya.

Mr. Otieno has also been involved in the development of a freshwater assessment tool using Geographical Information Systems (GIS) for the Maasai Mau Ecosystem by the Department of Early Warning & Assessment (DEWA) at United Nations Environmental Programme (UNEP) headquarters in Nairobi.

He has also worked with private consultancy firms and undertaken major Planning and Environmental projects involving local and international organizations such as the American Schools & Hospitals Abroad (ASHA) in Southern Sudan, AMREF International, and the Government of Kenya through various Ministries.